A. $f^{-1}(x)=\dfrac{x-2}{-3x-1}$

B. $f^{-1}(x)=\dfrac{x+2}{3x+1}$

C. $f^{-1}(x)=\dfrac{2x-1}{x-3}$

D. $f^{-1}(x)=\dfrac{-2x+1}{x-3}$

Solution:

Put $y=f(x)$, then $y=\dfrac{3x+1}{x+2}$

Interchange x and y

$\Rightarrow x=\dfrac{3y+1}{y+2}$ and solve y

$\Rightarrow xy+2x=3y+1 \Leftrightarrow xy-3y=1-2x$

$\Rightarrow y(x-3)=1-2x$

$y=\dfrac{1-2x}{x-3}$ and put $y=f^{-1}(x)$

$\therefore f^{-1}(x)=\dfrac{1-2x}{x-3}=\dfrac{-2x+1}{x-3}$

19. The solution set of inequality $3x^2 + 35x - 12 < 0$ is

A. $\left(-12, \frac{1}{2}\right)$

B. $\left(-\infty, \frac{1}{3}\right)$

C. $(-12, 1)$

D. $(-\infty, -12)$

Solution:- To factorize the expression, we need to find two number whose:

Sum: $p + q = 35$ and product $p \cdot q = -36$

Hence 36 and -1 the required number

$$3x^2 + 35x - 12 < 0 \Rightarrow 3x^2 + 36x - x - 12 < 0$$

$$\Rightarrow 3x(x+12) - 1(x+12) < 0$$

$$\Rightarrow (3x-1)(x+12) < 0$$

The zeros of each factor is $\frac{1}{3}$ and -12 we use the sign chart.

	$-\infty$	-12	$\frac{1}{3}$	∞
$x + 12$	$-$	$+$	$+$
$3x - 1$	$-$	$-$	$+$
$(x+12)(3x-1)$	$+$	$-$	$+$

$3x^2 + 35x - 12 < 0$ when $x \in \left(-12, \frac{1}{3}\right)$

A. The graph of the linear inequality $y \leq x - 1$ is above the line $y = 2x$ on the interval $(-\infty, -1)$

B. The graph of the linear inequality $y > 2x + 1$ contains no points of the line $y = 2x - 3$

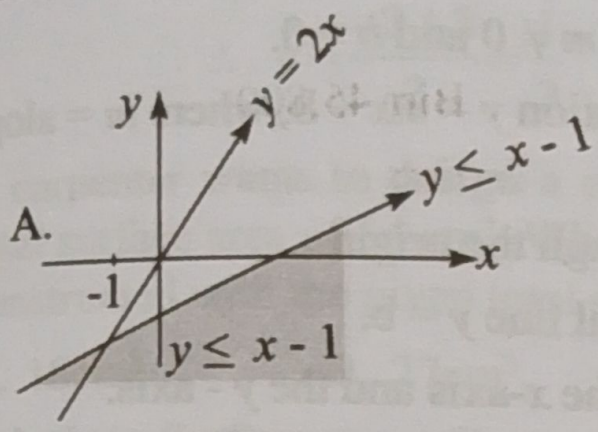
C. The graph of the linear inequality $y \leq 2x + 1$ is below the line $y = x$ on the interval $(-\infty, -1)$

D. The graph of the linear inequality $y > 2x - 1$ contains all points of the line $y = 2x$

Telegram: https://t.me/ExtremeSeries

Solution:

A.



$\begin{cases} y \le x-1 \\ y = 2x, \text{solving together we get } 2x \le x-1 \end{cases}$

$\Rightarrow x \le -1$

Take a test point on $(-\infty, -1)$

Let $x = -3$, then $y \le x - 1 = -3 - 1 = -4$ and $y = 2x = 2(-3) = -6$

Thus $-4 > -6$, but if we take the point $(-3, 10)$ on the region $y \le x - 1 - 10 \le -3 - 1$ is true, on the other hand $(-3, 10)$ below the line $y = 2x$

- ➥ if $b = 0$, the line passes through the origin.

28. Let $f(x) = e^{-2x}$. Which one of the following is true about f?

A. $f^{(n)}(x) = (-2)^n e^{-2x}$

B. $f^{(n)}(x) = 2^n e^{-2x}$

C. $f^{(n)}(0) = \left(-\frac{1}{2}\right)^n$

D. $f^{(n)}(0) = \left(-\frac{1}{2e}\right)^n$

Solution:

Use: $f(x) = a^{g(x)}$, then $f'(x) = (g'(x))a^{g(x)}$

Now we have: $f(x) = e^{-2x}$, then:

$f'(x) = (-2x)'e^{-2x} = -2e^{-2x} = (-2)^1 2^{-2x}$

$f''(x) = (-2x)'(-2e^{-2x}) = 4e^{-2x} = (-2)^2 e^{-2x}$

$f'''(x) = (-2x)'(4e^{-2x}) = -8e^{-2x} = (-2)^3 \left(e^{-2x}\right)$

29. Consider the function $f(x) = x^2 - 3x$ on $[-1, 2]$. What is the value x that satisfies the Mean Value Theorem?

A. 0 B. 1 C. $\frac{1}{2}$ D. $\frac{3}{2}$

Solution:- Mean value theorem is a guarantees for the existance of tangent line that is a parallel to secant line through $(a, f(a))$ and $(b, f(b))$

$$\Rightarrow f'(c) = \frac{f(b) - f(a)}{b - a}, \text{where } c \in (a, b)$$

$$\text{Now, } f'(c) = \frac{f(2) - f(-1)}{2 - (-1)} = \frac{(4 - 6) - (1 + 3)}{3}$$

$\Rightarrow f'(c) = 2c - 3 = -2$

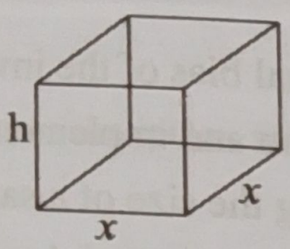
$\therefore \quad c = \dfrac{-2+3}{2} = \dfrac{1}{2}$

Answer: C

30. A carpenter wants to design a closed box that has a square base and total surface area of 54 cm^2. What is the maximum volume that can be constructed with the given total surface area?

A. $18cm^3$ B. $27cm^3$ C. $12cm^3$ D. $13{\cdot}5cm^3$

Solution:- Surface area of box = 2(base area) + $\ell \cdot S \cdot A$



$S(x) = 2x^2 + 4xh = 54cm^2$

$x^2 + 2xh = 27cm^2$

$\therefore \quad h = \dfrac{27 - x^2}{2x}$

Now, the volume of a box = (Base area)(height)

$v(x) = x^2h = x^2\left(\dfrac{27 - x^2}{2x}\right) = \dfrac{27x - x^3}{2}$

$\dfrac{dv}{dx} = \dfrac{27 - 3x^2}{2}$, $\dfrac{dv}{dx} = 0$, when $3x^2 - 27 = 0$

Then, $x^2 = \dfrac{27}{3} = 9$, and $x = 3$

Hence, $h = \dfrac{27 - x^2}{2x} = \dfrac{27 - 3^2}{6} = \dfrac{18}{6} = 3$

Therefore, $V = x^2h = (3)^2(3) = 27cm^3$

Solution:- Area bounded by two curve $y = f(x)$ and $y = g(x)$ on [a, b] with $f(x) \geq g(x)$ is given by $A = \int_a^b \big(f(x) - g(x)\big)dx$

48. Let $z_1 = 2 - 3i$ and $z_2 = 5 + 7i$. Which one of the following is equal to $\frac{z_1}{z_2}$?

A. $\frac{-11}{74} - \frac{29}{74}i$ B. $\frac{31}{74} - \frac{29}{74}i$ C. $-\frac{14}{46} + \frac{29}{46}i$ D. $-\frac{11}{46} + \frac{10}{46}i$

Solution:

$$\frac{z_1}{z_2} = \frac{2-3i}{5+7i} = \frac{(2-3i)}{5+7i} \cdot \frac{(5-7i)}{(5-7i)} = \frac{10-14i-15i-21}{25+49} = \frac{-11-29i}{74}$$

Telegram: https://t.me/ExtremeSeries

A. $x=-\frac{5}{3}$ and $y=\frac{25}{21}$

B. $x=\frac{5}{3}$ and $y=-\frac{25}{21}$

C. $x=\frac{69}{13}$ and $y=-\frac{29}{13}$

D. $x=-\frac{69}{13}$ and $y=-\frac{29}{13}$

Solution:

$$\begin{cases}2x+7y=-5\\5x+11y=2\end{cases}\Rightarrow\begin{matrix}5\\-2\end{matrix}\begin{cases}2x+7y=-5\\5x+11y=2\end{cases}$$

$$\Rightarrow+\begin{cases}10x+35y=-25\\-10x-22y=-4\end{cases}$$

$$0+13y=-29$$

$$y=\frac{-29}{13}$$

To find x :substitute $y=\frac{-29}{13}$ in $2x+7y=-5$

$$\Rightarrow\ 2x+7\left(\frac{-29}{13}\right)=-5\Leftrightarrow 2x=-5+\frac{203}{13}=\frac{138}{13}$$

$$\therefore\quad x=\frac{138}{26}=\frac{69}{13}$$

51. Consider the sequence $\left\{1+\frac{1}{n}\right\}_{n=1}^{\infty}$ Which one of the following is true about the sequence?

Solution:

A. 2 is its lower bound

B. $\frac{3}{2}$ is its lower bound

C. 4 is its upper bound

D. $\frac{6}{5}$ is its upper bound

Solution:

The sequence is bounded : $1 < \left\{1+\frac{1}{n}\right\}_{n=1}^{\infty} \leq 2$ beacuse when $n=1$,

$\left\{1+\frac{1}{n}\right\}_{n=1}^{\infty} = 2$ when $n \to \infty, \left\{1+\frac{1}{n}\right\}_{n+1}^{\infty} \to 1$

$\therefore$ The set of all upper bound is $[2,\infty)$

A. Birr 2,012,000

B. Birr 2,054,000

C. Birr 2,060,000

D. Birr 2,064,000

Telegram: https://t.me/ExtremeSeries

Solution:

Initial amount = 2,000,000

At the end of first year = 2,000,000 + 10,000

At the end of the 2nd year = 2,000,000 + 10,000 + 10,400

At the end of 3rd year = 2,000,000 + 10,000 + 10,400 + 10,800

At the end of 6th year:

$$2{,}000{,}000 + 10{,}000 + (0, 400, 800, \ldots\}$$

$$A_6 = A_1 + 5d,\ A_1 = 0,\ d = 40$$

$$A_6 = 0 + 5(400) = 2{,}000$$

$$2000{,}000 + 10{,}000 + 2000 = 2{,}012{,}000$$

PASSAGE I

THE SHRINKING EARTH: ECOLOGICAL THREATS

1. In 1977, the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and UNESCO jointly published and alarming map of the spread of deserts across the world. Shaded in orange, pink and red were all the areas in danger of desertification. The colored patches covered a major part of the developing world outside the rainy equatorial belt. In Latin America they covered north – east Brazil, central and northern Mexico and stretched right down the Andes as far as Chile. They ate into the Horn of Africa and much of the south-west of the continent. And without interruption they reached half way round the globe in a broad swathe from the Atlantic coast of the Sahara, right across North Africa and the Sahel, through the Middle East and Persia to Pakistan and north-west India.

2. There could be no more graphic expression of the ecological dangers that threaten so much food production, so many livelihoods in the developing countries. In world is losing precious agriculture land at twice the rate that new land is being broken for farming. An area greater than Great Britain is disappearing every year. Soil is being exhausted, eroded, and blown away at the rate of two and a half billion tons per year. By the end of the century, the world may have to support one and a half times its present population on only three-quarters of its present cultivate area.

3. In his report on the state of the environment in 1977, United Nations Environment Programme Director, Mostafa Tolba, warned that, if present trends continue, there would be only 0.15 hectars of farm land per person by the year 2000, half the 1975 level. Productivity would have to double merely to allow people to get the same amount of food as today. These are the figures on which he based that cultivation: in 1975 there were 1240 million hectares under cultivation. Over the next 25 years, perhaps another 300 million new under cultivation. Over the next 25 years, perhaps another 300 million new hectares may be opened up but over the same period 600 million hectares – half the entire 1975 cultivated area – may be lost. Of these, half will probably disappear under the ink-blot spread of cities, which are expanding horizontally twice as fast as the populations are growing, and over some of the best agricultural land. The other 300 million will be the toll of soil degradation.

4. At least half of the total erosion will be in the world's 45 million square kilometers of potentially productive but ecologically precarious dry lands, which stretch through a hundred nations. About 700 million people live in this zone, almost all them in developing countries, and 18 million live in areas that are currently undergoing rapid desertification.

5. Everywhere the deserts are advancing. In Sudan, the southern edge of the Sahara moved south by 100 kms between 1958 and 1975. The deserts do not march forward on a solid front, like an army. Patches appear, like those at Aorema in Burkina Faso, around centers of population or watering holes, then spread, link up with others, and finally merge into the desert itself.

6. The chief agent of what has been called leprosy of the soil is man, the impact of his activities on highly sensitive and delicately balanced ecosystems. The prime factor in the process is population increase. The number of people in the Sahel, for example, is doubling every 25 to 30 years. We can see everywhere the consequences of this among settled farmers: the cutting down of fallow periods, progressive decline in the vegetation cover, increasing erosion. As population goes on growing, cultivation is pushed into areas that are entirely unsuitable for agriculture, and there the process progresses even more rapidly.

Passage II

1. UNITED NATIONS – Nearly 60 million people have been driven from their homes by war and persecution, an unprecedented global exodus that has burdened fragile countries with waves of new comers and littered deserts and seas with the bodies of those who died trying to reach safety. The new figures, released recently by the United Nations refugee agency, paint a staggering picture of a world where new conflicts are erupting and old ones are refusing to subside, driving up the total number of displaced people to a record 59.5 million by the end of 2014, the most recent year tallied.

2. Half of the displaced are children. Nearly 14 million people were newly displaced in 2014, according to the annual report by the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. In other words, tens of thousands of people were forced to leave their homes every day and "seek protection elsewhere" last year, the report found. Tens of millions of others fled in previous years and remain stuck, sometimes for decades, unable to go home or find a permanent new one, according to the refugee agency. They include the more than 2.5 million displaced in the Darfur region of Sudan, and the 1.5 million Afghans still living in Paksitan.

3. When refugees flee their own countries, most of them wind up in the world's less-developed nations, with Turkey, Iran and Pakistan hosting the largest numbers. One in four refugees now find shelter in the world's poorest countries, with Ethiopia and Kenya taking many more refugees than, say, Britain and France. As the report states, "the global distribution of refugees remains heavily skewed away from weather nations and towards the less wealthy." Even so, there has been a sharp backlash in European Union has shelved its plans to get approval from the United Nations Security Council to target human smugglers who operate in lawless Libya and to destroy the ships they use to bring migrants across the sea. Instead, the European Union is scheduled to meet on Monday to discuss whether it will start military operations in the international waters of the Mediterranean Sea, for which it does not need the Council's blessings.

4. European Union leaders are still squabbling with one another over how to split up at least 40,000 asylum seekers across their 28 member states. And they have stepped from a sharp-and-rescue operations after intense public pressure stemming from a sharp increase in the deaths of migrants crossing the Mediterranean this year. Australia has felt no such compunction. Its prime minister, Tony Abbott, has pledged to turn around migrant boats before they enter Australian territorial waters, including those with minority Rohingyas fleeing persecution in Myanmar. His administration faces scrutiny over allegations that it paid smugglers to turn a boat back to Indonesia after it was intercepted on the high seas.

5. "For an age of unprecedented mass displacement, we need an unprecedented humanitarian response and a renewed global commitment to tolerance and protection for people fleeing conflict and persecution," Antonio Guterres, the high commissioner for refuges, said in a statement accompanying the annual report.

6. Amnesty International, in a report issued this week, accused governments and smugglers alike of pursuing "selfish political interests instead of showing basic human compassion." The United

Telegram: https://t.me/Extremeseries

States offers permanent resettlement to roughly 70,000 refugees each year, though its plans to admits 2,000 Syrian refugees this year have drawn scrutiny from Republican lawmakers who worry that some among them might be terrorists. The war in Syria is the largest source of displacement. By the end of 2014, 7.6 million Syrians were displaced within the country itself, and nearly another 3.9 million were refugees living outside the war-torn nation.

Reasons and solution to Student Exam and Essay Cheating

1. Cheating comes in many variations. Just because you are leaning over and peaking at somebody else's exam, it does not mean that you are not cheating. Cheating includes any dishonest action used by a student to complete an assignment without actually having to complete it themselves. Some of the most common forms of cheating are looking at someone else's exam., using materials without permission, collaborating with other students without permission, and not reporting another student if you see that he or she is cheating. Students cheat for all types of reasons: pressure to succeed, lack of time to study, peer pressure, laziness, and the list goes on.

While schools claim that a student can be expelled for cheating, many cheating students escape the consequences

I do not think that it's possible to set consequences based on the reason why a person cheated because the severity of a reason can be relative, but it's more logical to base consequences on the method in which the cheating was done.

2. Perhaps the most classic form of cheating on the an exam is taking a quick peek at the exam of the person sitting next to you or in front of you. Oftentimes it's easy to see answers in the corner of your eye and the teacher seldom notices. I believe that this type of cheating should result in automatic failure of the exam, no questions asked. Likewise, if the student tries to cheat again then he or she should fail the whole course. Looking at someone else's exam is extremely unfair because you're putting forth no effort to complete the work, and you're benefitting from someone else's hard work. Students generally do this when they're not confident in their own answers and they want confirmation of the correct answer, but that doesn't make it acceptable. Not enforcing consequences for this type of cheating will result in the student feeling as if he or she never has to study or do work, because there will always be someone to copy off. One possible way to solve this problem is to have the exam questions in different orders is that a student would have to really try in order to steal someone's answer, and it would make it more noticeable for the teacher.

3. Using restricted material is another common form of cheating. Students find ways to sneak in note-cards, write answers on their hands, peek at a textbook, or store information in electronic devices. Students usually do this to ensure that they don't forget any information while taking the test. The best to prevent any of these actions from happening is for the teacher to walk around the room and make sure that there is no material present. Unfortunately, technology makes this difficult. If a student is taking a math test then oftentimes a graphing calculator is needed, but these calculators have the capabilities to store material. I feel that if a student tries to cheat in this manner then the consequences should be that they are no longer able to use a calculator in future exams and they will fail the current test. Not allowing calculators during future exams would be a drastic consequence because many algebra and geometry tests require calculators. Obviously, if this type of cheating occurred again then the student should fail the course. If this type of cheating is not stopped, then students will see no need to study or read their textbooks because they can just record the information.
4. Although many students do not realize that unapproved collaboration is a form of cheating, it actually is. Sometimes the teacher will walk out of the room or the classroom is so big that it's impossible to hear whispering. Collaborating with classmates during an exam is supposed to be done by each individual is dishonest. The consequence for this type of cheating should be failing the test, being separated from the class for future tests, and failing the class if it happens again. Collaborating with classmates gives some students an advantage over the ones that are not doing so, and it fails to reflect the skills of each individual. Obviously cheating in this way is a huge disadvantage to the student because they are not always going to have someone there to help.

5. Lastly, failing to report someone else's cheating or allowing someone to copy cheat off you is a form of cheating. Most students are not willing to report a cheater because they are concerned about the reactions they will get from their classmates. There are ways to anonymously report a cheater. While you may feel like you are throwing someone under the bus, you will actually be harming a lot more people if you don't tell. If someone in the class gets a perfect score because they cheated, then the curve of the test might be higher, and the expectations for high scores will also be higher. People that are not cheating do not have the same advantage as the ones that are, they did the hard work, and they are going to be the ones that get the short end of the stick. The consequences for not reporting a cheater should not be as severe as the ones for cheating. In fact, the consequences are mostly personal because it's nearly impossible to tell if someone knows someone else cheated. The consequences are that you put in a lot of time and effort to study and you have less of a chance of getting a good grade.

Paragraph II

Our Dogs Are Watching Us

1. A few months ago, I reported a study of the ability of dogs to read the minds of their owners. Well, not exactly. They were not really reading minds; they were reading human body language to figure out which of two containers actually had food hidden in it. Now, experimenters have conducted more research in an attempt to identify the single skill that dogs have but other animals lack.
2. In experiments reported in November 2002, scientists compared dogs, wolves, and chimpanzees. The tests involved hiding food in one of two containers, then pointing at, looking at, and tapping on the container with the food.
3. While dogs were quick to figure out which container held what they were looking for, neither the wolves nor the chimps understood what the experimenters were trying to communicate. The inability of the chimps to perform better than the dogs was surprising, considering the overall intelligence of chimpanzees. But the differences between dogs and wolves were fascinating because of the relationship between the two.
4. Wolves gave rise to dogs several thousand years ago, and while the physical differences between the two are the most obvious, there are clearly mental differences, too. This experiment suggested those differences are in the areas of social interaction with humans. A team of Hungarian scientists has found that they think is the key: Dog look at people's faces. It sounds simple, but there are experiments to back up the claim.
5. The Hungarian team made sure that the wolves were socialized to humans by having them live with people 24 hours a day from the time they were four days old. This meant that the dogs and wolves were equally used to human voices and gestures. By familiarizing the wolves and dogs to humans, the researches hoped to eliminate the effect that the animals' anxiety might have on the experiment. The socialization seems to have worked. Some of the wolves were able to understand some of the human gestures, although overall they still were not as good as the dogs.

6. It was a second experiment that revealed the key differences between the two animals. Both dogs and wolves were trained to get a piece of meat in two ways. They were taught how to lift the lid of a container to get at the meat inside and how to pull a rope (tied around a piece of meat) out of a cage. When the animals had figured out how to do both, the scientists tricked them. The lid was fastened down and the rope was tied to the cage. It was now impossible for them to get at the food.

7. What is happened? I'm sorry I can't report that the dogs learned to unite the rope or use a screwdriver to open the container, but they did do something the wolves didn't do-they kept looking at the room, apparently waiting for some sort of sign no help them get in meat.

8. The differences between the two animals were striking. In both tests, seven out of nine dogs kept checking out the person, while only the two of seven wolves did. The researchers claim that this act of looking at human faces is a "genetic predisposition" in dogs. It is one of the innate differences between two species and therefore must have been one of the first steps in the process of domestication thousands of years ago.

9. I would like to see this new piece of evidence applied to previous observations and theories about how dogs were domesticated. Some researchers have theorized that as dogs involved, from wolves, their behavior became more immature. For instance, dogs exhibit submissive behavior that wolves do not, as if adult dogs are more like baby wolves. But the tests conducted by the Hungarian researchers were done when the animals were only a few months old, so you would think that if dog behavior is basically the same as that of young wolves, the wolves in this experiment might have looked at their owners, too.

10. I can add to this research from my own experience. My dog also looks at people to get food: He makes sure I'm not looking at him, then steals my sandwich. That's what I call highly evolved behavior.

II. Comprehension

DIRECTIONS: Read the following passages carefully and answer question 39 -58 according to the information therein. Each question has four choices, A-D. Choose the best alternative and blacken the letter of your choice on the separate answer sheet provided.

Section One: Reading Passage I

1. Where would modern society be without advertising? Individual advertisers might think they are just trying to sell a particular product but advertising as a whole sells an entire lifestyle. It it weren't for advertising the whole of society would be quite different. The economy, for instance, would be plunged into a crisis without the adverts and all the publicity that fuel our desire for limitless consumption.
2. As John Berger observed in his book "Ways of Seeing",all advertising conveys the same simple message: my life will be richer, more fulfilling one I make the next crucial purchase. Adverts persuade us with their images of others who have apparently been transformed and are, as a result, enviable. The purpose is to make me marginally dissatisfied with my life- not with the life of society, just with individual life. I am supposed to imagine myself transformed after the purchase into of envy for others- an envy which will then given me back my love of myself.
3. The prevalence of this social envy is a necessary condition if advertising is to have any hold on us whatsoever. Only if we have got into the habit of comparing ourselves with and finding ourselves lacking, will we fall prey to the power of advertising.
4. While fanning the flames of our envy advertising keeps us preoccupied with ourselves, our houses, our cars, our holidays and the endless line of new electronic gadgets suddenly seem indispensable. Tensions in society and problems in the rest of the world, if attended to at all, quickly fade into the background. They are certainly nothing to get particularly worked up about. After all, there can't be nay winners without losers. That's life.
5. People like John Berger are also not entirely over the moon about the impact that advertising and shopping have on the value of political freedom. Freedom is supposed to be the highest value in our societies, but in the age of the consumer that freedom is all too readily identified with the freedom to choose between Pepsi and Coke,McDonald's and Kentucky Fried Chicken, Toyota and Ford, and people lose interest in the various political freedoms and our ability to participate in the process of exercising democratic control. There are lots of criticism that could be made of modern democracies, but no one is going to pay much attention to them if they are more interested in becoming happy shoppers.

6. In all these ways advertising helps to keep the whole socio-economic show on the road. We are rarely aware of this because we are too busy working to earn the money to pay for the objects of our dreams-dreams that play on the screen of our mind like the little clips of film we see in the commercial breaks.

The faculty, assuming that the all-male student body would never agree to a woman joining their rank, allowed them to vote her admission. Two years later, in 1849, Elizabeth Blackwell became the first woman to receive an M.D. degree from an America medical school.

Section Two: Reading passage I

1. Ethiopia has been severely affected by climate change. It has experienced mass starvation all the way in its history. The Wollo drought and famine of 1973 for example killed hundreds of thousands of people and displaced millions. In fact, it was one of the major causes for the mass uprising that took place against the government of Emperor Haile Selassie. The 1979 and 1984 famines that happened under the military regime killed over a million people and wiped out huge number of livestock in the drought-affected regions of northern Ethiopia. The situation forced the military government to initiate programs such as resettlement and villagization which were unpopular and became contributory factors to the downfall of the regime in 1991.

2. Climate change continued to be a major threat to Ethiopia. Long periods of recurrent drought and erratic rainfall are the visible outcomes of this phenomenon. A significant section of the population is still exposed to shortage of food and water. Scarcity of resources has caused huge displacement of people. The populations in the east and south east of Ethiopia, particularly the pastoralists, remain vulnerable to drought and famine. Currently, over six million people in dire need of

3. Drought and shortage of food have resulted in resettlement programs that have increased mobility and migration and exposure to all types of disease such as HIV/AIDS. Studies made at Miz-Hasab Research Centre show that vulnerability to HIV/AIDS has increased in communities affected by climate change especially among internally displaced people and re-settlers. To help it deal with the effect of climate change the government has created a Climate Change National Adaptation Programme of Action (NAPA). This is a unique move on the side of the Ethiopian government. However, conflicts mainly caused by lack of good governance are exasperating the situation. Displaced people are experiencing shortage of food, disease such as HIV/AIDS infections. Resettlement is a temporary solution. In fact, it fuels the spread of HIV AIDS and enhances environmental degradation.

4. The study recommended that (i) family planning and population control activities should be in place; (ii) technologies which are environment friendly have to be introduced; (iii) all efforts have to be incurred to raise food production and ensure food security; (iv) environmental rehabilitation should be given priority. This involves protection activities such as conservation of soil and wild life including plants.

5. There should be consorted effort to enlighten the broader communities to lead a rational life. Education is a key factor for change. Social services such as health, legal services and access to information should be available in close distance. There should be efforts to develop the social capital each community possesses for bringing about behavioural change towards dealing with climate change, HIV prevention, and gender equity.

6. Food security and economic wellbeing along with scientific and social knowledge can help in changing the behavioural practices of people. The authors believe that if NAPA is reformulated by incorporating these notions, it can make an impact in the life style of people and mitigate the consequences of climate change and the communicable diseases such as HIV/AIDS.
